TEACH WITH PROGRAMS PROVEN TO WORK

Direct Instruction (DI) is the research-proven methodology at the core of our Reception–Year 13 literacy and maths tiered curriculum solutions. For over 50 years, DI has empowered educators to deliver learning experiences proven to transform students at all levels into highly skilled and confident learners. Whether they are struggling, English Language Learners (ELL/ESL), Special Education Needs (SEND), or on-level, DI is proven to work. It gives educators an explicit and systematic instructional framework and time-tested resources to help students meet and exceed achievement goals.

Direct Instruction (DI) is the methodology of instruction that provides the basis for the programs authored by the Engelmann-Becker Corporation (EB). These programs are known as DI programs. We use the capital letters to distinguish this from direct instruction, which is often used as way to describe explicit and systematic instruction.

DIRECT INSTRUCTION'S PHILOSOPHY AND RESEARCH BASIS

The creators of Direct Instruction built the approach on a few central principles, including the notion that all children can be taught, all children can improve, and all teachers can succeed when provided the right support and materials. The recent swell in attention toward the Science of Reading is driven by a similar idea — that the global troubling reading outcomes are not due to the abilities of the student or the competency of the teacher but to ineffective curriculum.

DECADES OF RESEARCH-PROVEN EFFICACY

Research fuels all that we do to improve learning outcomes. Decades of research have consistently revealed strong evidence of academic achievement when students are taught using evidence-based intervention programs.

KEY TO ICONS

Direct Instruction: Programs using the DI model

EAL/D: Programs are suitable for use with ESL students

Special Education Needs (SEND): Programs are suitable for use with students with special needs

The explicit instruction is characterized by a series of structured lessons that guide students through the learning process. Instruction for learning new skills includes clear explanations, modeling, as well as guided feedback and support until independent mastery has been achieved. This design methodology along with reading instruction aligned to the science of reading results in powerful academic outcomes.
